EMMANUEL MUSIC ANNOUNCES 2009-10 SEASON
~ HAYDN AND SCHOENBERG: FATHERS OF INVENTION ~

Emmanuel Music has always been a flexible ensemble – in 2008-2009, around our core of Bach cantatas, we ranged from Josquin (1521) to Primosch (2008). But in 2009-2010, with Bach still our weekly meeting place, and early and new music still stretching us out, we become even more limber by embarking with our friend Russell Sherman on an exploration of two Fathers of Invention: Haydn and Schoenberg. In chamber and orchestra programs designed to challenge, surprise, and delight, we will guide you through some of music’s most colorful terrain.

Acting Artistic Director, John Harbison, and Associate Conductor, Michael Beattie, are collaborating to provide artistic leadership through the 2009-10 season, as the search process continues for a permanent Artistic Director.

All performances take place at Emmanuel Church, 15 Newbury Street, Boston, where Emmanuel Music is the Ensemble-in-Residence. Each performance features Emmanuel Music members - all renowned for their artistry and for the collaborative ensemble playing that explores the music with a sensitivity and emotional depth that have won critical accolades and a loyal audience.

Opening Benefit Concert – AFTER HOURS: John Harbison and Friends

Wednesday, September 16, 2009, 8:00 PM at Scullers Jazz Club

Emmanuel Music and the Token Creek Jazz Ensemble

Near Art Songs, Waltzes, Mary Travers Comeback Album
Robert Anderson, Susan Consoli, Krista River, Jason McStoots, Charles Blandy, and Michael Beattie
Pop Songs and Instrumentals
Nicole Pasternack, Tom Artin, John Harbison, Rose Mary Harbison, John Schaffer, and Todd Steward

September 16 is the “pub date” for John Harbison’s After Hours (G. Schirmer), a collection of songs written “in the margins” between 1953 and 2009, some downright lowdown, some in the new realm of Near Art. Included will be two songs written for the occasion with lyrics by Lloyd Schwartz (a sophisticated beguine called Dreamin) and Louise Gluck (a tough country ballad, Stand By Your Grievance).

Evening Concert Series: Haydn and Schoenberg: Fathers of Invention

I. Inventing Genesis
Saturday, November 14, 2009 at 8:00 PM
Emmanuel Church

_Schoenberg: Prelude, Op. 44 (Genesis)_
_Haydn: The Creation (Die Schöpfung)_

_Soloists:_ Raphael: David Kravitz; Gabriel: Kendra Colton; Uriel: Matthew Anderson;
Eva: Kristen Watson; Adam: Mark McSweeney
The Orchestra and Chorus of Emmanuel Music, John Harbison, conductor
Pre-concert lecture/discussion at 7:00 pm

Schoenberg composed his powerful “Prelude to the Bible” in 1944 as part of Genesis Suite, commissioned from seven different California émigré composers by Fred Astaire’s music director Nathaniel Shilkret, premiered before a glittering Hollywood audience. Haydn composed his Creation in 1796 on a commission organized by a similar entrepreneur, Baron von Swieten, with twelve aristocratic donors footing the bill for both the composition and a premiere before the elite of Viennese society. The common ground – deep, fervent, unfashionable religious faith expressed in indelible sounds

II. Reinventing Vienna
Saturday, April 17, 2010 at 8 PM
Emmanuel Church

_Schoenberg: Accompaniment to a Cinematographic (Film) Scene, Op. 34_
_Haydn: Symphony Concertante_
_Schoenberg: Five Pieces for Orchestra_
_Haydn: Symphony No. 70_

The Orchestra and Chorus of Emmanuel Music, John Harbison and Michael Beattie, conductors
Pre-concert lecture/discussion at 7:00 pm
The geographical origin of these composers is close, and so is their maverick nature. Vienna must have something to do with it – the coffee, the pastry, the sense of cultural centrality? When Richard Strauss first received Schoenberg’s Five Pieces, 1909, he declared it the first piece he had ever been unable to hear and follow. Today, especially in Schoenberg’s own chamber version, it seems clear, fresh, and beautiful. By 1934 Schoenberg was vividly imagining a powerful role for music in the still-young film industry (his Op. 34).

The two Haydn pieces on this program are less often played these days than the Schoenberg. They are equally bold and enervating – the Symphony (1779) with Haydn’s patented tricks and quirks, the Symphony Concertante (1792) with its masterful illumination of its multiple soloists, the autumnal fire of his late style.

Bach Cantata Series

October 4, 2009 through April 25, 2010, 10:00 am Sunday mornings
Emmanuel Church

The Cantata season, performed as part of the Emmanuel Church Sunday liturgy in a context as Bach intended, continues for the 40th consecutive year at Emmanuel Church with The Orchestra and Chorus of Emmanuel Music, and soloists drawn from the ensemble, conducted by Acting Artistic Director, John Harbison, Associate Conductor, Michael Beattie, and guests. Again in 2009-2010, The Boston Children’s Chorus, Anthony Trecek-King, Artistic Director, will join the Emmanuel Music ensemble for one of the cantata performances. In addition to the cantatas, motets by Brahms, Domenico Scarlatti, and Buxtehude; Schoenberg De Profundis and Handel Chandos Anthems will be featured during the season. Again on Good Friday, April 2, 2010 Emmanuel Music will present a Schütz Passion, this year his St. Luke Passion.
